

Dear Friends,

Perhaps you'll understand. The Catholic faith is a mystery indeed. Few really grasp the riches of the faith, opting rather for some shallow form of Christianity that more readily appeases the senses or accommodates to a world in rapid change away from the essence of the faith. We are therefore seemingly forced into the underground – the catacombs so to speak. But from this hidden place something beautiful will bud forth in due season - in due time – in God's time.

For our part we keep the faith cleaving to Christ in the Holy Eucharist, deeply immersed in the Word of God, and entrusting our lives to the Blessed Virgin Mary. These three things we do, indeed confound the wise of this world, but are the leaven that will bring us and others to victory in the battle. Ponder these things will you?

In Christ,

Fr. Anthony
